ABSTRACT

The Transfer Code of Conduct is designed to improve the process of journal transfer between publishers. It was launched by the UKSG (United Kingdom Serials Group) in May 2007. Taylor & Francis is one of eight publishers to support the project. It is different from previous initiatives in that it was created by publishers, librarians, and intermediaries, and it aims to provide a firmer, more practical set of guidelines than those that have been published previously. Despite a strong initial take-up, the Code has not yet been endorsed by some of the larger publishers and trade bodies. These organizations are now working with Transfer to re-draft the Code of Conduct. Once this is in place, further measures are planned to track journal transfer and monitor compliance. Long-term governance of Transfer is also being considered.

ABSTRACT

The Transfer Code of Conduct is designed to improve the process of publishers. It is different from previous codes of conduct in that it was created by publishers, librarians, and intermediaries, and provides a more practical set of guidelines than those that have been published previously. Despite a strong initial take-up, the Code has not yet been endorsed by some of the larger publishers and trade bodies. These organizations are now working with Transfer to re-draft the Code of Conduct. Once this is in place, further measures are planned to track journal transfer and monitor compliance. Long-term governance of Transfer is also being considered.

Ian Bannerman The use and abuse of usage measures

The use and abuse of usage measures

Updated from a paper presented at the UKSG annual conference, Torquay, April 2008<sup>1</sup>

This paper looks at the extent to which the COUNTER guidelines on usage data have met their goals for recording and reporting usage data in a consistent, credible and compatible way. It compares the proposed Usage Factor with the Citation Impact Factor and highlights key differences between the act of downloading and the act of citation. Drawing on the experience of the Impact Factor, it then speculates on how measuring the literature can change the literature and how this Observer Effect might impact usage patterns.

South Asia Archive

A major new resource in South Asian Studies

The Routledge South Asia Archive

《南亚研究回溯》 数位化过程

South Asia Research Foundation members traversed India seeking out and purchasing rare historical material in various states of preservation and decay.

Documents were initially stored with no cataloguing.

A team of academics/students etc. started sorting and cataloguing the documents

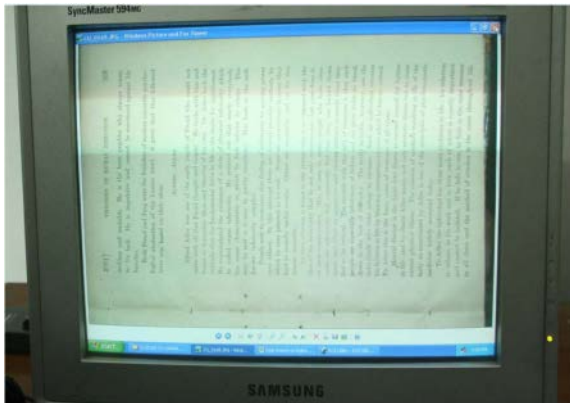

Once the subject specialist editors have selected the documents, of most historical value for the South Asia archive inventory, then the hardcopies are dispatched to the digitizer XI

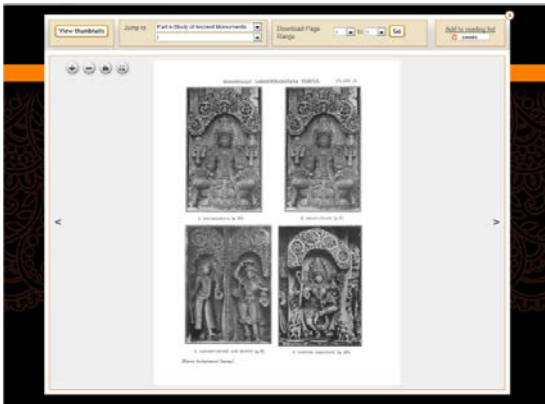

The documents are sorted again for quality purposes, prior to any restoration, and the books are unbound for non-destructive scanning

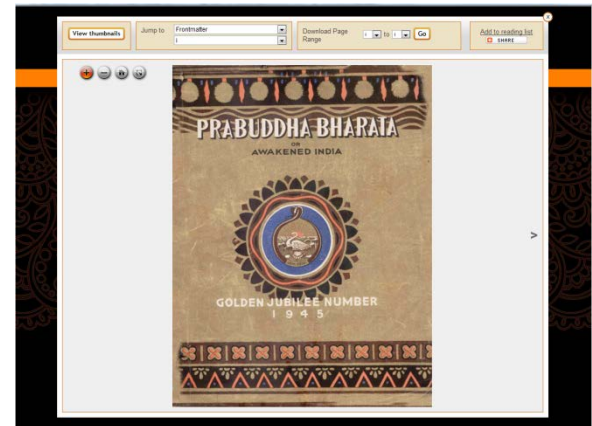

Documents are digitized and quality assessed by the image processing teams.

The content is validated and sent to Taylor & Francis to upload to the South Asia Archive Platform.

Haryana saw 60 rape cases a month in 2011

19 Rapes Over Last Month Not State's Worst Record, It Witnessed 725 Sexual Assault Incidents Last Year

Shameful Stats
 Crime records Haryana show that if a rise in violence against women continues a record in the dark age, Haryana has not abruptly stopped it. In 2011, the state saw 725 rape cases, an average of 60 a month. This means the reported figure of 19 rapes over the last month is not the worst since 2006, 20 women have been raped every month, barring one that the number came down to 11.

Over the last year, the average has risen to 60 victims per month. Whether on the media and politicians take note, violence against women is persistent and increasing, and not just in the state but in the country.

In fact, a comparative study shows that Haryana has a rape incidence of 6.11, which means 6.11 rapes for every lakh women. Madhya Pradesh has an incidence of 5.1, and Delhi has 4.7, which is the lowest.

15-yr-old had consensual sex, wasn't raped: Cops

Chandigarh: Haryana police's recent report, in a 15-year-old flower girl's alleged gangrape last month has caused her medical examination and corroborative evidence to conclude that she had consensual intercourse.

Legal experts have slammed the report, saying that the law does not recognise consent of minors in such cases and that the state should take appropriate action to protect its girls.

The medical examination of the victim has revealed that there were no signs of struggle or trauma to her body. The corroborative evidence also clearly indicates that it was a case of consensual intercourse.

However, the police has issued a statement saying that the girl had consented to the sex. "Medical certificate of the accused and the victim were taken into account by the police," said the police.

With China's rise, Mumbai says 'Ni Hao' to Mandarin

Mumbai: Till a few years ago it was said you could talk to just about anyone in the world if you knew English, Spanish and French. The dominance of China has been Mandarin, slowly but surely, over the other languages of the world. The growing economic and cultural clout of the Chinese world has seen Mandarin, slowly but surely, over the other languages of the world. The growing economic and cultural clout of the Chinese world has seen Mandarin, slowly but surely, over the other languages of the world.

The power of language is often perceived to be proportional to the economic strength of a country. In this case, it is China, which has seen Mandarin, slowly but surely, over the other languages of the world.

UP BJP youth leader shoots waiter, held

Kanpur: In another criminal case, a BJP youth leader in Uttar Pradesh shot a waiter in a restaurant. The waiter was injured and is being treated in a hospital.

The police has issued a statement saying that the waiter had refused to serve the leader. "The waiter was shot in the chest and is in a critical condition," said the police.
