•HISTORIA•

1850 - Realism & Impressionism
Impressionism broke from traditional theory, in the sense of capturing the moment, capturing light and color, and capturing the atmosphere of the scene.

1880 - Post Impressionism
Both a progression of Impressionism and a rejection of its emphasis on the momentary, Post Impressionism sought to express the artist's inner world, to express the artist's emotions, to express the artist's ideas, to express the artist's soul.

1900 - Cubism
Cubism was a radical departure from traditional perspective, and a rejection of the emphasis on the momentary. It sought to express the artist's inner world, to express the artist's emotions, to express the artist's ideas, to express the artist's soul.

1910 - Surrealism
Surrealism was a radical departure from traditional perspective, and a rejection of the emphasis on the momentary. It sought to express the artist's inner world, to express the artist's emotions, to express the artist's ideas, to express the artist's soul.

1920 - Abstract Expressionism
Abstract Expressionism was a radical departure from traditional perspective, and a rejection of the emphasis on the momentary. It sought to express the artist's inner world, to express the artist's emotions, to express the artist's ideas, to express the artist's soul.
